RSS Fine Texas Limestone
Rock Solid Stone offers three basic types of building stone: Chopped Stone (sawn top and bottom and chopped into squares and rectangles); Flagstone (hand split into irregular shapes and installed in a mosaic pattern); and Architectural Cut Stone (sawn on all sides with a smooth face).
Chopped Stone

Our full thickness chopped building stone is rectangular in shape, 3”-5” thick, and is saw cut top and bottom with a chopped face and ends. Standard face heights are from 4”–10” but can be as small as 2” or as tall as 16”; lengths are random. It can also be produced as a thin veneer product (1”-2” thick). Chopped stone is often referred to as sawn top and bottom, sawn and chopped, or Sonoma cut.
White Chopped Stone

Our White chopped building stone is alternatively referred to as Austin Chalk, Salado White, Georgetown White, Florence White or Austin Blanco. The color ranges from bright white to off white with accents of color. White limestone can be used by itself or mixed with other varieties of our chopped limestone, such as Nicotine and Cream.
Nicotine Chopped Stone

Our Nicotine chopped building stone is alternatively referred to as Salado Gold, Yellow, Sienna or Austin Blanco with Color. The color ranges include rusts, browns, grays and gold with white accents. Nicotine limestone can be used by itself or mixed with other varieties of our chopped limestone, such as White and Cream.
Cream Chopped Stone

Our Cream chopped stone ranges in color from off white to light and dark cream with rust accents. Cream limestone can be used by itself or mixed with other varieties of our chopped limestone, such as Nicotine and White.
Cave Chopped Stone

Our Cave chopped stone ranges in color from dark brown to tan to shades of white and cream. The darker pieces in particular have a pocketed, or honeycomb, texture that gives cave rock its unique look. Cave rock is also commonly referred to as Cave Blend and Cave Mix, since some of the stone that comes from the Cave ledge has characteristics of the white, cream and nicotine layers that we also quarry. Cave can be used alone or combined with other colors, such as nicotine or dark cream, to increase the ratio of darker to lighter stone.
Rattlesnake Chopped Stone

Our Rattlesnake stone is chopped on all sides into roughly rectangular shapes. This stone’s fossilized texture and cream-based color provide a unique and elegant look and feel. Random lengths and heights allow for a variety of customized installation options. Rattlesnake can be blended with other types of limestone to vary overall color and texture.
Flagstone

Our flagstone builders are irregular shaped, hand split stone that is 3-5” thick when used as wall veneer and is installed in a mosaic pattern. Sizes are random but typically range from the size of a dinner plate to a small seat cushion with occasional larger and smaller pieces. Flagstone builders are also commonly known as flag, builders, or Chateau stone.
White Flagstone

Our White flagstone builders provide a timeless look with a white to off-white color, random shapes and sizes, and a split face texture. White flagstone is often blended with a percentage of our Nicotine flag to provide additional contrast.
Nicotine Flagstone

Our Nicotine flagstone builders provide a rustic, “Old World” look with rust, brown and gold colors, random shapes and sizes, and a split face texture. Nicotine flagstone is often blended with a percentage of our White flag to provide additional contrast.
